Anti-Poverty Awards Nominations

Entries are now open for awards designed to recognise young people working to help alleviate poverty. Member for Evelyn Christine Fyffe is urging community groups and individuals to nominate.

The Connections UnitingCare Anti-Poverty Awards established in 2004 recognise young Australians between the aged of 16 and 30 who are making a contribution to the eradication of poverty at a local, national or international level.

“The awards are a great way for young people to receive recognition for the inspirational work they are doing to battle poverty,” Mrs Fyffe said.

The winner will receive a $4,000 grant to continue their work, and encouragement awards up to $1,000 are also offered.

“We have so many young people who really take the initiative to help others. This is a wonderful way for our communities to say thank you,” Mrs Fyffe said.
